The plot of a novel is the sequence of events that occur within it, beginning with introductory material and ending with a resolution. The elements of plot include:

- A. Exposition: background information establishing setting and characterization including the major event that causes the plot to move into the rising action; the initial conflict to which the characters react in an effort to solve a problem
- B. Rising Action: the less critical conflicts encountered by the characters in their effort to resolve the major conflict
- C. Climax: the turning point; the most exciting, most suspenseful moment in the novel
- D. Falling Action: the settling action after the crisis in the novel
- E. Resolution: the conclusion of the conflict; the outcome
